

Your Free Wrap today is based on an extracts from recent Editions 555 & 557 of Jim Berg's Mentoring- style 'Investing & Online Trading' Report

Are We Near a Bubble Top?

By Jim Berg and John Atkinson

Author and educator Jim Berg has successfully traded and invested in the market for over 30 years, 18 years of which as a professional broker.

Jim won the 'Personal Investor' trading competition during the 2000-2003 Bear Market. His last book 'Shares to Buy and When' was Money Magazine's 'Book of the Month' and one of A&R's 'Top 5 Business Books of the Year'.

The following article, based on recent extracts from Jim and John's weekly 'Investing & Online Trading' stock market Report, examines "Are We Near a Bubble Top?"

1) Introduction

In his online article of 28th March 'Can You Increase Your Wealth by Timing the Market?' Economics commentator Rob Burgess wrote;

"Financial advisers are fond of telling clients 'you can't time the market', by which they mean it's very hard to get rich by buying-in and selling-out of shares to profit from each bout of volatility.

Nonetheless, learning to recognise the periods of relative quiet, and calmly using them to recalibrate your investments, is the best way to avoid being trampled when the next rush for the exits occurs."

We firmly believe that traders and investors CAN indeed be taught how to time the market. E.g.:

- ✓ Jim Berg cautioned Members of our Report to 'cash up' in late December 2007 to early January 2008, i.e. before the GFC.
- ✓ Jim also issued warnings to Members before the falls of August 2011, June 2013, October 2014, August 2015 and again before January 2016*.
- ✓ As a result, Jim has saved those who followed his 'Big Picture' lead - when he closed this Report's notional portfolios and went to cash - from NOT losing millions of dollars between them*.
- ✓ Since we launched our Report in 2005, Jim has consistently taught how to minimise the number and size of losses. Consequently, Jim has NOT had a single major loss in our Report's notional short term trading portfolios for 11 years.
- ✓ In addition, on a number of occasions during stronger rising trends since 2005, Jim Berg has showed Members how to achieve a success rate of over 80% profitable trades in his notional short term portfolio selections*.

In this article today, we look at a 'big picture' view on the USA, Australian and several Asian markets.

2) Previous "Bubbles"

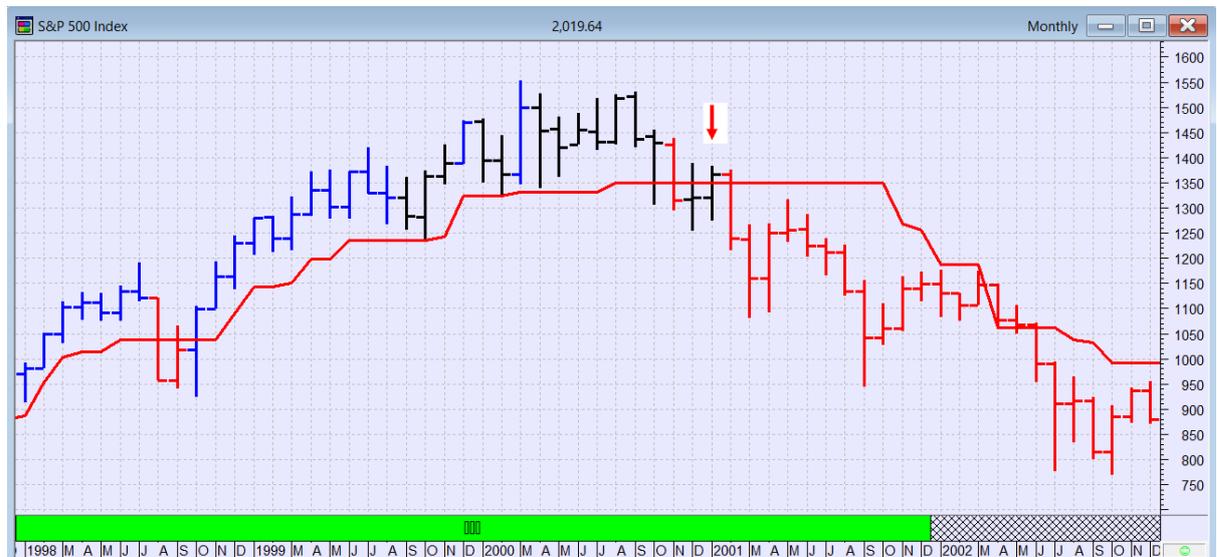

Many analysts have been calling the market rise over the past year a "bubble". So let's have a look at the charts at two previous bubbles.

The Dot Com Bubble topped on the S&P500 Index chart in March 2000. The S&P500 weekly chart below generated a weekly falling trend reversal in November, 2000.

S&P500 Weekly Chart

The S&P500 monthly chart below had two consecutive closes below the Volatility Trailing Stop and an exit on January 2nd, 2001. The peak to trough fall was - 50.5 % and the fall from the Volatility Trailing Stop exit lasted 22 months.

The Australian market escaped much of the Dot Com bear because of the small number of tech and dot com companies listed on our exchange.

But it's worth looking at our market through the GFC and the current potential bubble.

ASX200 Weekly Chart

The ASX200 monthly chart below had two consecutive closes below the Volatility Trailing Stop and an exit on March 3rd, 2008.

The peak to trough fall was - 54.5 % and the fall from the Volatility Trailing Stop exit lasted 13 months. This was the same exit date as the S&P500 and the same number of months down.

Having issued several Caution warnings prior, in our weekly Report of 13 June 2015, we notified Members just one day after the overall market EXIT Signal was generated: " The ASX200 Index, below, is also now in a falling trend as the 3 rising trend criteria have now all been reversed i.e. the closing price is below the moving average, the moving average is falling and prices have made a pivot point lower high and lower low. With this new trend reversal:

- 1) We have closed the remaining share in the Australian notional Portfolio
- 2) There are no RSI Alerts for the Australian market while the ASX200 (XJO) is in a falling trend
- 3) We plan to take advantage of such a switch in trend and trade the downside in our weekly Report, with details to follow."

Jim will continue to monitor a selection of the charts shown above in our weekly Report in coming weeks.

The two previous bubbles, Dot Com in 2000 and Credit in 2008 ended with significant falls. The charts screamed WARNING and were reasonably accurate in signalling potential reversals.

The 'experts' say this time "it is different" – and already it is a little different:

- The S&P500 chart is very messy with several trend reversals since August, 2015.
- Also, the timing of the break below the monthly trailing stop for both the ASX200 & S&P500 were not close, as in 2008.

If markets manage to climb from here - enough to switch from a falling trend to a rising trend, then Jim will advise Members of this overall market RE-ENTRY Signal - just 1 day after it occurs.

However, if markets fall further, portfolio values are likely to follow, which will mean such investors will be faced with the need to rebuild their wealth later, after the market finally rebounds.

For instance, to date, the XJO has a long way to climb back before it resumes its 2007 Highs.

As a result, many investors who listened to these 'experts' advice last time have still yet to recover from the GFC, while several have also been forced to change their plans for retirement.
