Latest Performance Update for our new 'Done-For You' News-Based Trading Signals

At this unprecedented time, interest rates and incomes for many people are low, so increased ca$hflow has become more important.

We recently opened our new 'Done-for You News-based Trading Signals' for the Australian share market *.

Each night we now scan the ASX200 to locate those Australian shares which pass our 'News-based Entry Rules', then, for on behalf of our Trading Signals Members:

- 1) On our 'Entry Signals Log' we nominate our:
 - a. Maximum suggested Entry Price
 - b. Initial Stop Loss price
 - c. Corresponding Trade and Portfolio Risk %
- 2) (In our 'Cutting Room Floor Log' we also list any shares which were filtered out and rejected – for Members' extra interest.
- 3) Monitor each notional position 'entered' in 2 discrete time frames:

Method #1: Designed to grab quick profits in the order of +10 to +15% in a few days

Method #2: Designed to 'let profits run' in a strong rising trend, using our 'News based Trailing Stop' **

(Trading Signals Members can then select which frame they prefer to use. E.g. dependant on your personal circumstances, risk profile, lifestyle, etc.)

- 4) Notify Members of any Exit Signals for the following day & post them on a Members' 'Exit Signals Log'.
- 5) Post the current data for all 'open' and 'closed' notional positions each night on a 'News-based Trading Master Log', as shown in the sample below:

* This is not a Managed Discretionary Account service.

We wrote at the outset that dependant on market conditions, Method #1 (aimed to 'grab quick profits in a few days') will outperform Method #2 (aimed to 'Let profits run") and vice versa.

A Trading Signals Member asked; " Is it okay to split funds in half and take trades in BOTH time frames for each new News-Based Trading Entry Signal . I.e. Method #1 AND Method #2?"

We replied; ' We monitor Method #1 and #2 for each new position and update the latest prices and Stop Values on the Master Signals Log. It is up to each Member to select which frame they prefer to use. E.g. dependant on your personal circumstances, lifestyle, risk profile and how you prefer to trade.'

Both time frames are possible with 2 smaller positions and as always Money and Risk management are important.'
